Interested in learning bird anatomy? For an interactive learning experience, go to:
<https://academy.allaboutbirds.org/features/birdanatomy/>

Learning about the feather areas of a bird is not only interesting but will be beneficial in identifying a particular bird.

Basically they are: forehead, lore, auriculars, supercilium, malar region, throat, side, flank, chest, belly, undertail coverts, uppertail coverts, tail, rump, underwing coverts, primaries, secondaries, crown, mantle, nape
